Celebrating Trees Through Art

EVERY THREE years, the American Society of Botanical Artists (ASBA) and the New York Botanical Garden (NYBG) coordinate a botanically-themed art exhibition. This year's event is "Out of the Woods: Celebrating Trees in Public Gardens," featuring the arboreal denizens of various public gardens.

"This triennial exhibition's theme is especially engaging, because people have such close relationships with trees, which are central to our very survival," says Carol Woodin, director of exhibitions for ASBA. "Trees breathe life into us both literally and figuratively."

The current exhibition features 44 pieces selected to represent diversity in artistic styles and tree species. These compositions range from a watercolor depiction of a screw pine (Pandanus utilis) from the Bermuda Arboretum to a graphite pencil rendering of a fig tree (Ficus carica) from the Tucson Botanical Garden in Arizona.

The exhibition debuted at NYBG in the Bronx last November, and the collection is currently on display at the Huntington Library, Art Collections, and Botanical Gardens in San Marino, California, where it will stay through August 27. From there, the exhibition will travel on to gardens in Missouri, Arizona, and Montana.
